The South 40

Conference slated here

By JAMES A. SMITH
Extension Agent

Appomattox will host one of the four regional Forage Conferences on February 9. The program begins at 8:30 a.m. at the Woodmen of the World Building. There is a registration charge of $2.00 to cover building rent and miscellaneous costs. The lunch is sponsored by Central Fidelity Bank. We do need to know by February 6 if you plan to attend so that food arrangements can be made.

This is a program that will interest anyone producing pasture, hay or silage and urge you to attend.

• • •

Had a call from a regional newspaper wanting to do a story on farm slaughter of hogs. If you plan to process some pork at home and would like to participate in the interview and picture series, please call this office, 352-8244.

• • •

Burley tobacco prices are up $8.25 per cut over a year ago. The crop for November averaged $186.62. Sales are down 16 percent from a year earlier.

In December sales were down 34 percent, but prices averaged $183.02, up $8.96 from last year.

• • •

Flue tobacco growers surely need to attend the stabilization meetinge in South Boston, Feb. 8, 2:00 p.m. at the American Legion Home. The situation is critical and as a producer you need to know what is happening and likely to happen.

• • •

Arthur Mullins reports that they harvested 25 bushels of soybeans per acre planted no-till this past year. This is unusually good considering the weather. The variety was Pioneer 5482.

• • •

Beverly Martin, who has a long history of growing top quality fire cured tobacco, may have set a new price record last week. He sold 1873 pounds for an average of $239.93. There were several piles that brought $265 per hundred.

Congratulations, Beverly, on an outstanding sale. One of the fire cured buyers always tells me that "good tobacco is always in demand." This is probably true for most things.

Warren Moore helped cure the tobacco and certainly he deserves credit for a good job.

Last Saturday 82 bulls were sold at the Red House Bull Test and Evaluation Center for $94,715.00, averaging $1155.

Clark Lewis bought an Angus bull.

The fifth Annual Corn Soybean Conference will be held at the Williamsburg Hilton, February 8 and 9. Dr. John Martin, economist with Farm Journal, is the keynote speaker.

• • •

The 1984 Flue Cured Tobacco Production Guide was mailed to producers this week. If you failed to receive a copy, call our office and ask for one.

Local bull is leader

A Polled Hereford bull owned by Knoll Crest Farm, Red House, Va., and Antonio Mountain Ranch, Petaluma, Calif., has been named a 1984 Trait Leader for birth weight by the American Polled Hereford Association (APHA).

Antonio Vic 010823SF was one of 10 sires recognized by the APHA for exceptional progeny performance in birth weight among the 721 bulls listed in the 1984 Sire Summary, an annual list of bulls with their expected progeny difference values.

APHA initiated the Sire Summary program three years ago to give breeders and commercial cow-calf producers guidelines on selected bulls for use in their individual breeding programs. Performance data on birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, carcass characteristics and maternal productivity of the sire's offspring is gathered by breeders across the U.S. and analyzed in APHA's data center.

"The program is not designed to tell breeders which bull is best, but instead help breeders make selection decisions to fit the needs of their herd," says Dr. Jim Gibbs, APHA Vice President of Education and Research.

Trait Leader recognition in the Sire Summary is based on excellence in single traits plus total performance. Bulls ranking on the list have outstanding progeny performance and a high degree of reliability.

Fabric care changes notes

By OCIE M. MACK
Extension Agent

As of January 2 you are seeing some new care labels on clothing and on certain piece goods. The new labels will identify in greater detail the washing or dry cleaning information that should be included on a permanent care label. Fabrics for home sewing will also be labeled. Some of the new labeling requirements are as follows:

Care labels must be attached in such a way that you can easily see or find them before you buy clothing or fabric.

Either washing or dry cleaning instructions are required to be on the label.

If the article is washable, the label must specify machine or hand washing.

If regular hot water will not harm the fabric, the label need not specify water temperature.

Care labels must state whether the article should be dried by machine or some other methods. When machine drying is specified, temperatures must be included unless the hottest setting will not harm the fabric.

Ironing instructions must be given if ironing is needed to preserve the appearance. If ironing is mentioned, a temperature setting should be specified unless a hot iron will not harm the fabric. If ironing would damage the fabric, the label must carry a warning.

The label need not mention bleaching if all bleaches can safely be used. If only non-c hlorine bleaches can be used, the label must specify "Only non-chlorine bleach when needed." If all bleaches would be harmful, the label must specify "No bleach."

A care label does not have to warn against washing methods not recommended on the label. If care label includes washing instructions, it doesn't need to warn against dry cleaning.

These new care labels will h elp you to get your money's worth through proper care and will help you to care for the new blends of fibers in v arious combinations. Here are some examples of blends that will be manufactured in 1984:

Rayon blended with polyester, silk or wool.

Cotton and wool blended with silk, linen, mohair, nylon or acrylic.

Triacetate blended with nylon, polyester or linen.

Cashmere is blended with wool or silk.

Rayon is expected to replace cotton in many blends because the 1983 cotton crop was smaller than usual causing relatively high cotton prices. Cashmere will be used in combination with other fibers in an effort to contain costs and because China is not exporting its finer cashmere. Fibers that may replace cashmere in blends include camel hair, angora, llama, Alpaca, mink, yak, musk, ox, and buffalo.

Another new fiber coming along is polypropylene–fiber that's used in disposable diapers and thermal underwear. It provides natural warmth without weight and can draw body moisture away from the skin. It's insulating properties provide comfort in both cold and hot weather, so you'll find it in skiwear, swimwear, golf shirts, bedsheets, and many other items.

Stretch denim is also coming along until within five years, as much as one-quarter of the denim market could belong to stretch denim. Blended fabrics of at least 60 percent cotton are becoming popular in sweaters, too.

Hospital program starts

Virginia Baptist Hospital will start starting a car Seat Loan Program on Feb. 1.

Although all parents are strongly encouraged to provide a car seat for their child, any parent who does not have an approved car seat available at the time of their child's discharge from the hospital, may request to borrow a car seat from the hospital. There will be 25 seats available for loan on a first-come, first served basis.

The seats will be available for up to 30 days and parents will be required to participate in an education program on the use and care of the car seat.

There is no charge for this program.

Principal funding for the car seats came from the Medical Auxiliary with supplementary funding from the Fort Hill Junior Woman's Club.

The program is designed to ensure that all children being discharged from Virginia Baptist Hospital have a safe ride home.

Good News For Homemakers

Food additives have been in use longer than recorded history

By SHIRLEY W. WALTON
Extension Agent

Do you believe that food additives have just been used in foods since the space age began? Wrong! Food additives have been in use longer than recorded history. The first use of food additives is believed to have been in preserving meat and fish in prehistoric times.

Salt, sugar and corn syrup are the most widely used food additives in today's world. These three, along with baking soda, mustard and pepper, account for nearly 95% of all food additives used in the United States. Since many persons today have concerns about food additives and many times have their opinions of food additives flavored with misconceptions, I wish to share with you information about the eight main groups of food additives. They are:

1. Emulsifiers, stabilizers and thickeners which give texture, softness or other desired consistencies to a product.

2. Nutrients, such as Vitamin C added to fruit drinks, or potassium iodide added to salt.

3. Flavoring agents which enhance or flavor.

4. Leavening or neutralizing agents which control acidity or alkalinity.

5. Preservatives, antioxidants, sequestrants, antimyotic agents, which prevent spoilage, the rancity of fats and microbial growth.

6. Coloring agents which increase acceptability and attractiveness of foods to the public.

7. Bleaches which whiten such foods as flour and cheese and speed the maturation of cheeses.

8. Humectants, an anti-caking agent which retains moisture in foods and keeps others such as salts and powders free-flowing.

The 1958 Food Additives Amendment to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act requires that if food processors want to add a substance to a food, they must "submit a petition to FDA, accompanied by extensive information on chemistry, use, function and safety."

To prepare this petition, toxicological tests are conducted on animals. These studies can take years to complete and can cost millions of dollars.

The next step after the studies have been completed and thorough documentation has been done, a public hearing is held with testimony for and against the substance presented by qualified people. If a review of the evidence shows that a substance is safe, the FDA will authorize its use under specific conditions.

By the same token, substances can later be withdrawn from use if evidence shows that there is some danger present in the substance. We have seen this with many of our artificial sweeteners that have been on again and off again as far as marketing is concerned.

Yes, food additives have a long history. If you have questions or specific concerns about a food that has been added to some food that you purchase on the shelf, you may write directly to the company and ask questions. Get them to tell you how much of this particular additive is in the food. This is extremely helpful to find out if persons suffer from food allergies. I also wish to encourage you to be label readers. There are many additives in foods that you may not have a tolerance for. Again, this is especially true of persons who have food allergies or a diabetic condition.

If you have a homemaking question or problem, you may call 352-8244 or you may write P.O. Box 488, Appomattox, VA 24522. It's always a pleasure to hear from you and to help you.

Have a good week!

WARNING FOR USERS OF MICROWAVE OVENS

If you warm a baby's bottle in a microwave oven, you must test the formula on the inside of your wrist. There have been reported instances of babies being badly burned because the bottle contents were not tested for temperature.

When a bottle is placed in the microwave, the contents get hot but the bottle does not. Therefore, a small baby's mouth and upper intestinal tract can be badly burned.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Ruth's Carried Chicken Salad
2 cups chicken breasts, cooked and cut in chunks
½ cup sliced water chestnuts
½ lb. halved seedless green grapes
1 - 8 oz. can drained pineapple chunks (chunks can be cut in half)
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup toasted slivered almonds

Mix all ingredients together and toss gently with the following dressing mixture:
¾ cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons soy sauce

Mix all the dressing ingredients and add to the chicken mixture. Chill for several hours.

Many thanks to Mrs. Ruth Webb for sharing this delicious recipe with us. She served this at a luncheon meeting recently and it was the "hit of the day."

This recipe can be made the day before serving and can be easily doubled or tripled.

THE VILLAGE MARKET

Shirley Campbell & Linda Cheatham

There are quite a few grocery stores throughout Appomattox so there has to be a reason why people drive for miles to shop at THE VILLAGE MARKET, located on Hwy. 24 E., phone 352-8587.

Actually, there are two reasons: well stocked shelves and courteous personnel who strive to serve you in any way they can.

This fine grocer always keeps a good supply of fresh bread, plenty of all types of canned goods and the area's freshest dairy products, as well as miscellaneous farm supplies, garden seeds and garden supplies.

THE VILLAGE MARKET features a good supply of prepared food such as hot dogs, roast beef with a special sauce, ham and barbeque.

So stop in the next time you need groceries. Whether you stop by to prepare for a visit from 10 dinner guests or merely to pick up a pack of cigarettes, you'll always be greeted by a friendly, courteous employee who wants to see you coming back again and again to THE VILLAGE MARKET.

The days of the 15 cent loaf of bread and the nickel bottle of pop are gone. So also, unfortunately, is something many old-time grocers insisted upon: friendly service.

A PODIATRIST SPEAKS ABOUT FOOT PROBLEMS

Podiatrists generally agree, feet must not be neglected. Proper foot care is just as necessary to good health as care of the eyes and teeth.

Surveys of Podiatrists, they are the specialists that treat foot ailments, have shown that many painful foot afflictions with which people suffer through life are actually started in childhood. An annual foot check-up would do much to prevent serious foot disorders later.

You probably wonder how weak feet can be recognized. When you are standing barefooted with the feet parallel, look at the heel from the back. If the ankle tends to roll over, or if the heel cord is not in a straight line, it indicates a weakness. Knock knees is another indication, a "double ankle" appearance or a bulge under your instep, also uneven wearing of the sole of the shoes. If any of these indications are present, the sensible thing to do is consult your Podiatrist for advice.

There is no time too early to consider foot health, but there most certainly is a time too late so far as any correction without surgery is concerned.

We and DR. BARRY L. SWEDLOW, a Board Certified Podiatrist of Lynchburg, are pleased to bring you this information.

THE SCIENCE OF CHIROPRACTIC

For more than 80 years. Chiropractic has been accomplishing wonderful things. The practice of Chiropractic is based on the principle of correcting many of the causes of disease in the body. Disease is effect, and every effect must have a cause.

Chiropractic is a philosophy science and art of things natural. It was discovered in 1895 by D. D. Palmer and at that time it was a new concept and the discovery brought about untold changes in treatment.

Today, Chiropractic has become the largest drugless healing profession in the Western World. This science contends that some of the causes of disease in the body are the vertebral subluxation which create pressure upon nerves and interfere with the normal transmission of vital nerve energy.

The Chiropractor's objective is to locate the place in the spine where nerve pressure exists and by proper adjustment restore vertebrae to their normal positions. Correct adjustment releases pressure on nerves and thereby allows the body to heal itself.

If you have any of these involvements please contact your local Chiropractor for assistance.
